Report of Work Being Done By Lawmakers at

THE STATE CAPITOL

Capitol Graft Investigation Now In Progress—Railroad Officials to Be Fined.

Harrisburg, February 6.—The bill that had the earnest approval of Governor Stuart has safely passed the House and was laid before the Governor with the concurrence of the Senate. He placed his signature to the bottom at once and thereby aided materially the speedy investigation of the state capitol scandal.

Immediately upon receipt of notice of the Governor's approval President Pro Tem Woods of the Senate and Speaker McClain of the House named the members of the respective bodies to serve on the committee. These are the investigators: Senators John S. Fisher of Indiana county, A. E. Sisson of Erie county, Arthur G. Dewalt of Lehigh county, Representatives R. Willis Fair of Westmoreland county, Moses Shields of Wyoming county, Robert R. Dearden of Philadelphia, R. Scott Ammerman of Montour county; Senator Fisher has been elected chairman.

Powers conferred upon the investigating committee are the most sweeping the Legislature can give. Auditing is the first thing to be done, and the appointment of the auditors have been announced, witnesses in great numbers will be subpoenaed, also contractors will be compelled to explain.

Abolition of primary elections and the introduction of the pure Australian ballot in the state are the chief features of a bill laid before the House by Representative Blakeslee of Carbon. The bill provides no way on the ballot to distinguish to which party a candidate belongs as the only column are those to separate the candidates into state, district, county and municipal. Fixed times are set for filing petitions and paying the accompanying fee.

Two-cent fare is the theme of a brief pointed bill drawn up by the State Board of Trade and presented in the House by Dunsmore of Tioga and Godcharles of Northumberland in the Senate. It ordains that no railroad company of any sort shall ask or collect more than two cents per mile, as fare except that the minimum fare collected shall be five cents and that any railroad officer, director or employee offending shall be fined not more than $1,000 and imprisoned not more than a year. It differs from the Creasy bill in having this penalty attached.

The bill to do away with osteopaths met with a very cool reception in the House. The father of that bill introduced a new one, tacit, but none the less effective to recognize osteopaths.

Husbands and wives of persons dying intestate without issue are liberally dealt with in a bill offered today by Representative Lydick of Allegheny. Instead of the third interest now given survivors they get at least three-fourths and get it absolutely.

Walter S. Reynolds of Lawrence introduced a series of bills to enforce several long derided sections of the seventeenth article of the State Constitution. Reynolds' bill strikes directly at the unconstitutional ownership of coal mines by railroad corporations, freight discrimination, the granting of free passes and the absorption by railroads of competing lines. Should these acts go upon the statute books they would, it is believed, effectively break up the Reading Railway Company's control of the great anthracite-coal fields and also the Pennsylvania Company's soft coal monopoly in central and western sections.

Senator Langford, Allegheny, introduced a bill in the Legislature providing for a convention to amend the State Constitution. It provides for three delegates from each Senatorial district, to be elected next November and to meet December 1.

The Pennsylvania railroad, before the House Committee on Railways at Harrisburg, objected to the Esler bill to compel the lighting of sleeping cars with electricity, its representatives declaring that it would be impossible to enforce the measure as no satisfactory system has yet been invented.

PIANO RECITAL

To Be Given in M. E. Church by Miss Stevens.

Don't fail to attend the piano recital at the Methodist church next Friday evening at 8 o'clock. Miss Edythe M. Stevens of Williamsport will be assisted by Miss Anna L. Cleaver, reader, of Bedford. This union of varied talents is assurance of an entertainment of highest grade and should bespeak a corresponding appreciation on the part of our citizens. The following testimonials of Miss Stevens' musicianship speak for Miss Stevens' musicianship speak for Miss Stevens' musicianship speak for Miss Stevens' technic is reliable and brilliant and her artistic and musical understanding so thoroughly developed that she renders even the most difficult works of the literature with assurance and refined poetic taste. She has a masterful and brilliant style and always commands attention when she plays—in short Miss Stevens is an artist and I am proud that she is my pupil."—Xaver Scharwenka, Royal Pianist to the Courts of Germany and Austria Hungary.

From "Conservatory Critic," Berlin: "Miss Edythe M. Stevens, an American, played last night at a gathering of some of the musical people of the city. Herr Prof. Scharwenka has great hopes for Miss Stevens and last night she fulfilled his expectations. Miss Stevens has a wonderful wrist. Her octaves, chords, and staccato passages are quite phenomenal in a young girl. But what is required more and showed more in the Beethoven Sonata played was her refined musical feeling."

"Miss Stevens shows not only great talent but has improved that talent by hard work. She has a splendid technic and plays with much feeling. Her octave and chord playing are done with unusual speed and dexterity."—Anton Moritzski, formerly teacher in Stern Conservatory, Berlin.

Remember the time and place. Admission, adults, 50 cents; children, 25 cents.

MURDERER ON TRIAL

Opinion of Sir Knight Jones—Tribute to the Welsh—Swettenham's Successor—Edmund Price Dead.

New York, February 6.—Prominent in the news items of the week the hateful Thaw assassination takes precedence, and I don't know when we are going to get rid of it; some months ago the time fixed upon was January, 1907, but January has waned into February. If a man had read an account of the murder in the newspapers it disqualified him to sit as a juror; it seems as though the deepest ignorance was the only qualification that would satisfy the prisoner, Thaw, and his counsel. From the constitution of the jury, I assume that an agreement is impossible. The prosecution has to get a solid verdict of twelve men. The defense has only to get one determined disagreement, and that single vote that saves Thaw from the electric chair is worth one hundred thousand dollars. His counsel, Delphin M. Delmas, who is said never to have lost a murder case, is said to have received a retainer of fifty thousand dollars and he receives one hundred thousand win or lose. Several millions of dollars are at the disposal of the defense, the last dollar of which will be spent to save the assassin from the electric chair. The prisoner is confident that he will be acquitted on his counsel's appeal to the unwritten law of the Red Right Hand. If he is it will be one of the most shameful mistakes that ever disgraced the criminal calendar. The public is heartily sick of having the columns of their daily papers filled with the horrible affair and wish it was buried ten thousand fathoms beneath the sea.

A party of tourists who had been traveling under the guidance of a Sir Knight named Jones arrived here this week. They were in Jamaica at the time of the earthquake and Sir Knight Jones declares that Governor Swettenham was perfectly right in ordering the Yankee Admiral to get out. He did not want to see a British island invaded by Yankee guns although they were loaded with medicines for the sick and provisions for the starving. He says that Admiral Davis was invited by the Chief of Police to bring an armed force to assist him in keeping order, as several hundred desperate negro criminals, taking advantage of the great disaster, were battering down the gates of the penitentiary to let them rush out to rob and murder; the arrival of the American marines saved the city; the request was not made by the Chief of Police but by the Governor's private secretary, whom Admiral Davis had every reason to believe was the proper person to convey the Governor's message. The Governor was asleep and they did not like to wake him. Jamaica rum is one of the most famous products of that favored island. Did you ever taste Jamaica punch as compounded in Jamaica? If you never have continue to remain in ignorance. I wonder if the Governor's nap was caused by a mixture of undue excitement consequent on the earthquake and Jamaica rum punch? Sir Knight Jones has Yankee on the brain and he is proud of a real British Governor who would not allow the British Lion to cower before the Yankee Eagle. He does not seem to realize that King Edward is quite as safe a guardian of the British Empire's honor as Governor Swettenham. He tinkers to no power, great or small—the Yankee Eagle or the Russian Bear. Great Britain's honor is his care first and last, and if there has been any British King in history who has ever guarded Great Britain's honor more zealously, I have never heard of him and don't know his name. Governor Swettenham is said to have offered his resignation, alleging as a reason that his country has shown him no sympathy. Sir Knight Jones insists that he shall receive the endorsement of the Empire. Sir Jones bears an honored name, and it is only a few months ago that we sent one of our noblest war vessels to bear the honored dust of Paul Jones from the tomb where it had rested for a hundred years. We bore it with imperial honor to our Naval Academy at Annapolis, where it was enshrined among the immortal heroes of American history as an incentive to the youth of future generations.

Communication From our Regular Correspondent

WAR NOT IMMINENT

Between the United States and Japan
—Panama Said to be Analyzed For Gold and Precious Metals.

Washington, D. C., February 4.—

A number of sensational papers have been trying hard to prove the imminence of war between this country and Japan. Of course, the public school case in San Francisco is still unsettled, and there have been a number of Japanese held up recently by the immigration inspectors on the Pacific coast for violation of the alien contract labor law. Altogether things are not so placid as they might be between this country and Japan, and the yellow papers have taken pains to magnify every incident and to insist that not only is war imminent, but that both this country and Japan are preparing for it by strengthening their armies and navies, and making other preparations for a sanguinary conflict.

Denials of these stories have been given out both at the White House and the War Department, but the mere fact that the government took the trouble to deny them only served to lend them a color of possibility.

The situation is simple and might as well be explained so that no one else will lose sleep over the prospect of an immediate yellow invasion. Japan has no more idea of war with this country than we have a war with England. Relations have been somewhat strained, not between the two governments, but between the mass of the Japanese population and the residents of the Pacific slope who regard the Japanese much as the people of the south regard negroes, and who want none of them except as laborers on the railroads and farm hands. Both the government of this country and that of Japan are fully alive to the situation, and efforts are being made now to adjust matters satisfactorily by treaty so that there will be no Japanese exclusion act passed shutting out the Japs from this country on the same basis as Chinamen are now excluded.

Much has been made of the reported activity of the Japanese in Hawaii, where it was declared they had already perfected a military organization, and were ready to capture the island as soon as the signal should be given by their home government. Commissioner of Immigration Sargent has recently returned from Hawaii, and a prominent Hawaiian planter, Lorin Thurston, is now in Washington on business with one of the departments. Both of these gentlemen have given out statements fully covering the situation in Hawaii, and agreeing in all essential details. They say there is a population of about 60,000 in the Hawaiian islands and that the planters there wish there were more. They are necessary as field hands and laborers and are the only source of labor supply, as Hawaii is entirely cut off from European immigration. Nevertheless these Japanese are not allowed to remain in peace in Hawaii where they are wanted, but are being continually enticed to the Pacific coast by immigration agents who thrive by hiring them out to the rail-

If You Read This

It will be learned that the leading medical writers and teachers of all the several schools of practice recommend, in the strongest terms possible, each and every ingredient entering into the composition of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for the cure of weak stomach, dyspepsia, catarrh of stomach, "liver complaint," catarrh of liver, or biliousness, chronic bowel affection, and all catarrhal diseases of whatever region, name or nature. It is also a specific remedy for all such chronic or long standing cases of catarrhal affections and their resultants, as bronchial, throat and lung disease (except consumption) accompanied with severe coughs. It is not so good for acute colds and coughs, but for lingering, or chronic cases it is especially efficacious in producing perfect cures. It contains Black Cherry bark, Golden Seal root, Bloodroot, Stone root, Mandrake root and Queen's root, all of which are highly praiseworthy remedies for all the above named afflictions by such eminent medical writers and teachers as Prof. Bartholow, of Jefferson Med. College; Prof. Finley, Ellingwood, M. D., of Bennett Med. College, Chicago; Prof. John King, M. D., of Cincinnati; Prof. John Scudder, M. D., of Hahnemann Med. College, Chicago, and scores of others equally eminent in their several schools of practice.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" is the only medicine put up for sale by such druggists for like purposes, that has had such professional recognition—worth more than any number of ordinary testimonials. Open publicity of its formula is the best possible guarantee of its merits. A glance at this published formula will show that "Golden Medical Discovery" contains no poisons, harmful or habit-forming drugs and no alcohol—chemical, pure, triple-refined glycerine being used instead.

Glycerine is entirely unobjectionable and besides is a most useful agent in the cure of all stomach as well as bronchial, throat and lung affections. There is the highest medical authority for its use in all such cases. The "Discovery" is a concentrated glycerine extract of active medicinal roots and is safe and reliable.

A booklet of extracts from eminent medical authorities, endorsing its ingredients mailed free on request. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Useful Hints

Hot water taken freely half an hour before bedtime is an excellent cathartic in the case of constipation, while it has a soothing effect upon the stomach and bowels.

Rust may be removed from nickel plating by covering the spots with mutton tallow and letting it stand for several days. If this treatment is followed by a rubbing with a good metal polisher and then by a thorough washing with strong ammonia, succeeded by clear water, and a final polishing with dry whiting, stubborn cases will yield.

Put into turpentine all the gum camphor it will cut and keep in a glass-stoppered bottle to apply to burns. It will not only heal severe burns, but also will prevent a scar.

Oilcloth should never be scrubbed; if this course be followed the paint will quickly be worn off. It should first be carefully swept with a soft brush to remove all the dust and fluff, then wiped with a large soft cloth wrung out in tepid (not hot) water.

If it is very dirty it may be necessary to use a little soft soap, but this should be done rarely, and on no account must soda be used. When it is dry, wipe over with a cloth or sponge dipped in skim milk, which will brighten and preserve the colors and give it a polish. After sponging with the milk dry with a cloth.

If a lamp should be overturned, do not attempt to put out the flame with water, for it will simply spread it. Instead, throw down flour, sand, garden earth or salt, any of which will have the desired effect.

It is worth while to remember, when heating milk, that if a little warm water is poured into the dish first it will keep the milk from sticking to the sides. Milk is more digestible if it is allowed to just reach the boiling point.

In buying fish the careful housewife selects one that is firm of flesh, the eyes full, the fins stiff, and the gills red. Stale fish are easily de-ected by the dullness of eye, the flexibility of the fins and the soft and flabby

Longfellow's Cambridge Home

With "singularly good fortune, within about a year after he came to Cambridge, Longfellow secured lodgings in Craigie House,—then and still, in its aspect, its surroundings, and its outlook, the most beautiful house in the town. That he obtained this coign of vantage at all is creditable to his tact and address; for to the solitary and somewhat eccentric mistress of the house, Madame Craigie, the society of most persons was quite unwelcome. This young professor, however, with his pleasing aspect and manners, was welcomed as soon as he disclosed his identity, and was given the very room that had been occupied by Washington in 1775, shortly after he took command of the Continental Army. After Madame Craigie's death, and the poet's marriage to Miss Appleton, this house, which, in addition to its other advantages, commanded a wide and pleasant view, became the poet's home for the rest of his life.

ESTABLISHED IN 1805

S. A. VAN ORMER,
Editor and Publisher.

The Bedford Gazette is a model among country newspapers.—New York World.

The Gazette is the leading news paper of Bedford county and its circulation is far ahead of any of its contemporaries. As an advertising medium it is one of the best in this part of the state.

Regular subscription price per year $2.00. If paid in advance $1.50.

All communications should be addressed to

Gazette Publishing Co.,
Bedford, Pa.

Friday Morning, February 8, 1907

Now that the light question has been decided time might be profitably spent by those who devote their efforts to saving the country and the state in discussing whether or not the fish in the reservoir were hibernating during the recent snow storm, and whether the cold weather has closed the leaks in the dyke at that body of water.

THAT LIGHT CONTROVERSY

The controversy over lighting the streets of our town has been brought to a close. The Light Company has accepted the modified proposal of the City Fathers, and as soon as the new lamps can be gotten from the factory they will be hung on the streets and the current will be turned on.

Lighting the streets of the town has been a source of trouble for years and differences may arise in the future, but there is one thing connected with the present adjustment that is gratifying. If the Council had refused to grant a franchise to the Gas Company they would have been censured by many persons, and if they had entered into a three-year contract with the Light Company at the January meeting and the Gas Company should have, by any unforeseen circumstances, failed to turn up the Electric Light Company would now be charged with having driven the gas people away. Happily these conditions did not exist; the Bedford Gas Company had an open stream and favorable winds but their canoe has not yet pulled into port within sight of Old Fort Bedford. There are many citizens who would be glad to see a gas company come to Bedford, in fact we know of no opposition from any source. If it does not materialize it will be because it is not a feasible business proposition and not because its progress in securing the desired franchise was in any way retarded by either the Council or the Electric Light Company. The February meeting of the town council was worthy a body of men who have in charge the borough's affairs, and in this respect it was in marked contrast to the meeting of the preceding month. But it is all history now; the lights will be turned on at the earliest possible moment.

AN OPPORTUNITY

It is claimed by many men who have made a success of life that a young man possessed of normal health and ability, may occupy a place in any profession he may choose. This is, in a large measure, true but it cannot be accomplished by sitting idly by while time is passing, nor can the young man who spends valuable hours listening to funny stories hope to make progress along educational lines; success only follows effort and grit. All boys want to be successful, but only those who want and are determined to succeed will achieve the desired object.

The Gazette will offer, in next week's issue a free scholarship in a business college to some worthy young man or woman. This business education may furnish a foundation upon which a son or daughter of the county may build with profit and pleasure. There will be no impossible conditions; the $50 scholarship will be exchanged for a little work. How many young men and women will be willing to spend a few hours that might otherwise be wasted to secure the scholarship?

THE DEMOCRATIC TICKET

The ticket recently nominated at the Democratic primary was selected from a long list of names of representative citizens. The ticket contains twelve names and these were selected from a list of forty. The Democrats of the town had a choice and they have made a selection of men worthy to fill the various offices.

There is, too frequently, too little attention paid to spring elections. Upon the men elected to some of the offices, at least, the welfare of the town depends and every citizen should feel it his duty to take an interest in the election and see to it that men, capable and willing to perform the duties of the office, are elected.

THE REVIVAL OF THE PIANO CLUB

This erstwhile popular organization has once again taken on new life, purposing to maintain the high standard in musical art, which it has ever been noted for.

The first meeting of the present season was held at the home of the president, Mrs. A. T. G. Apple. A full attendance was impossible, owing to the fact that "Ever deeper, deeper, deeper,

Fell the snow o'er all the landscape,
Till the covering snow had drifted
Through the forest, round the village."

Nevertheless a few dauntless ones braved the storm and darkness. A most delightful evening was spent. The musical program was as follows:

Duet ..... Leybach, Op. 59
Mr. and Mrs. A. T. G. Apple

Solo, "Butterfly" ..... Lebierre

Miss Hetty Barclay ....

Reading, Burlesque Criticism of Classical Concert

Miss L. D. Shuck

Solo, Nocturne, Op. 54, No. 4, Grieg

Miss L. D. Shuck

Solo, Gypsy Rondo ..... Hayden

Miss Josephine Smith

Duet, Piff Paff Polka, Op. 333, Engle-

Misses Shuck and Smith

Musical Rebus

On the conclusion of this program the meeting was given over to business, after which the hostess gave her guests a most thoughtful surprise by serving coffee, cake and candy. Thus fortified, at a late hour we once more braved the storm and appalling darkness, to the accompaniment of Mr. Apple's crusty lantern.

A Guest.

SHOT TO SCARE

The following, relating to a former Bedford boy, was clipped from the Philadelphia Record of yesterday:

"William Groff, it is alleged, today attempted to shoot J. T. Gephart, Jr., representative in Lancaster county of the State Highway Department, at his office.

"Groff, a clerk, was discharged yesterday for drunkenness, and today he returned to the office, and, it is said, fired at Mr. Gephart. On account of his condition his aim was bad, and the bullet struck the desk at which Gephart sat.

"The dozen people present fled and Groff coolly walked away. He has not been prosecuted. His friends claim that he did not intend to injure Gephart, but only meant to scare him."

MASTERED THE Q.

Hundreds of people have cured themselves of impediments in speech. One of last year's mayors as a young man used to find it almost impossible to pronounce words beginning with a "q." Every day for months he used to walk across St. James' park practicing this sentence aloud, "A quantity of quicksilver quietly quartered in a quagmire," until he conquered the impediment. Today he is one of the most fluent speakers in England.—London Tit-Bits.

WHY HE WANTED AN AUTOGRAPH.

A young man once wrote to William Dean Howells for his autograph. The novelist replied in a typewritten line:

"Have you bought my last book?"

The young man answered:

"I have not. I want to sell your auto-

THE PLANET JUPITER

Now a conspicuous figure in the Easter sky.

Readers of The Gazette have doubtless noticed on the few clear evenings with which we have been favored, the planet Jupiter, the noble star adorning the eastern sky after twilight closes and the stars rising until about 9 o'clock. It stands very nearly in the zenith. An important circumstance is the fact that its position among the stars is very nearly the same which the sun occupies on the longest day. It is moving slowly westward among the stars, as can best be seen by comparing its position relative to the two-third magnitude stars near it. On the 25th it will turn and move eastward again. All the planets whose orbits lie outside that of the earth retrograde thus for a few weeks before and after opposition with the sun.

Jupiter in the telescope is one of the most interesting and impressive sights to be seen in the sky. Its size is so great, having a diameter over ten times the diameter of the earth (or 88,000 miles) that notwithstanding it is in the neighborhood of four hundred millions of miles away, it subtends a disc larger than any other planet in the solar system. This is always seen crossed by shadowy bands, some broad and dark, some narrow and gauzy, some ashy gray, others brown, or reddish, always changing, yet preserving from year to year the same general system. Then the four larger moons, easily visible in any but the smallest spy-glass, passing and repassing the great disc of the planet, some in a few days, others longer, even weeks, these fall into all manner of interesting combinations—sometimes blended all together then all stretched out in a long line, sometimes hiding behind, sometimes passing in front of the planet. As they pass in front, the shadow of the moon shows—in a telescope of sufficient power—as a minute black dot. As they pass behind the planet they pass through his shadow; and when the planet is not in opposition, their emergence from the shadow—or reappearance from eclipse—is a very curious sight well repaying the patience that watches for it. When this happens we see all of a sudden from the depth of space beside the great Jupiter a minute speck of light seemingly new created out of the darkness, and in about five minutes the little satellite having thrown off the shadowy garments in which it had a few moments before been hidden, moves on in its steady silent journey among its sisters.

Three new satellites have been discovered in recent years, as the result of the immensely great and keen instruments recently constructed, such as the Lick and the Yerkes telescopes. The fifth satellite, together with the sixth and seventh, were all discovered at the Lick Observatory, the first by Prof. Barnard in 1892, the last two by Prof. Perrine within the present century. They are all three exceedingly small and faint, the fifth revolving at a shorter distance from the planet than any of the others and completing a revolution in nearly 12 hours. The sixth and seventh revolve at a distance greater than any of the others, are each nearly the same distance and, while it is too soon to know very definitely about their orbits or periods, it is known that their periods and distances are nearly the same, insomuch that some astronomers consider them twins that originated at the same time in the planetary development. They can be glimpsed only with great difficulty and then it needs a very good eye and a telescope of the strongest power.

PAY DAY IN CAMP

SOLDIER BOYS VISIT POINTS OF INTEREST AROUND HAVANA.

Cuba Columbia, Havana, Cuba, January 30, 1907.

Editor Gazette:—The long-looked-for "pay day" has come at last and the barracks are practically deserted, as all the boys off-duty are at liberty. They are taking in the amusements and historic points in the neighborhood. The chief center of attraction in Havana is the Palatina Park, which is the finest park in Cuba. The most noticeable sight around the barracks is the number of "spickity" tradesmen with their wares spread out over the ground waiting customers.

The chief social event last week was the officers' ball, which took place in the pavilion in the camp. There were about 150 officers present, representing a number of foreign countries. The pavilion was tastefully decorated with the flags of all nations.

The baseball teams are still very busy and the games are getting more and more interesting, as the race for the pennant is becoming closer every day. Owing to injuries to several of the Marines' players they took a slump last week and dropped three games, which throws them into second place, but as the players who were out of the game last week will be back in soon again, we expect to regain our old place at the top of the column.

A number of short-timers are being sent home every week on the transports. Several men went back to the States on the Kilpatrick yesterday. We hope to all go back in a few months.

During the day an effort was made to clear off a debt of $600 standing on the parsonage with the result that the whole amount was provided for and the church property is now entirely out of debt. Rev. G. W. Glover is pastor.—Saxton Herald.

BROWNSVILLE AFFAIR

Being Investigated by Senate Committee on Military Affairs.

The investigation by the Senate Committee on Military Affairs of the Brownsburg affray was begun on Monday. A score of negro soldiers of the Twenty-fifth Infantry, discharged from the army without honor because of their alleged participation in the shooting, were in attendance.

Attorneys were barred from the committee room. It is understood that Senator Foraker, author of the resolution of inquiry, will look after the interests of the men if they are placed in jeopardy.

The witness said that when the company formed Captain Lyons was present and called the roll and personally counted his men and that none were absent. He said that no person had joined the company after the formation and he declared that no men could have fired from in the barracks without having been detected.

He told of the patrol of the town by Company D and the fact that no soldiers were found in the town and finally he told of the return from the patrol and the surrender of arms and the locking of the arms in the racks.

The inspection of guns on the following morning was explained. It was found, he said, that none of the guns had been used, or if they had been they were cleaned over night.

Sergeant Harris was closely questioned regarding the time required to clean a gun between reveille and inspection and whether any of the men could have cleaned their guns between the time of the shooting and the call. He said it could not have been done.

DECAPITATED BY ENGINE

Huntingdon, February 6.—J. Luther Hamor, a well-known printer of this place, lay down on a sidetrack of the Pennsylvania railroad at the foot of Sixth street to take a nap, making one of the rails his pillow.

A shifting engine with cars moved over the track shortly afterward and Hamor was decapitated. He was 28 years old and leaves a family.

THE MAKING OF OREGON

Glowing Accounts of Its Productive Capacity.

It is enough if I am winning the place of welcome visitor in happy homes my feet may never enter. That through the long winter evenings my letters may be read by unseen friends around warm firesides under the evening lamp. If you care for plain pleasure and informal company and friendly observation on men and things then perhaps you may find something here not unworthy your perusal. If we would benefit by travel we must take with us an ample store of appreciative intelligence. Careful observation is as necessary to the traveler who would improve by his vocation as are wings to a bird.

In crossing the continent over the Northern Pacific Railroad we are taken through the productive wheat fields of Minnesota and North Dakota, along the gold and silver bearing hills of Montana and Idaho into the prolific garden-like valleys of Washington. On our way we are constantly meeting immense freight trains, with merchandise for the east, also passenger trains crowded with animated intelligent people altogether testifying to the great and growing traffic of the northwest. The great scenic charm of the northwest is the Columbia river. No matter what kind of scenery the visitor may desire Oregon has it.

Just now there is one question, only one, that absorbs all other considerations. You talk to the miner of his prospects, to the ranchman of his cattle, to the business man of his trade, but before they have spoken long they all alike settle down to discussing the question. Before it political issues fade, party lines are forgotten and partisanship yields to patriotism. It is the making of Oregon. There is no epoch like the making of a state. The ox team, the flat boat, the prairie schooner and the log-cabin will some day become invested with the halo of the golden west. Immigration has become almost a science, whole cities are picked up and moved west bodily. With respect to the productive capacity of Oregon, accounts so glowing as to excite incredulity have sometimes found their way into the eastern papers. Yet in truth the frozen facts are more enlisting the attention and the industry of shrewd and far-seeing men.

The state is not a paradise and it has its drawbacks, but the general opinion of capable observers is that it is conspicuous among American states for ability to supply all the needs of civilized men. The great fact is its variety of resources; substantially every industry possible to a temperate climate is represented here. Most remarkable to eastern readers is the yield of an acre of Oregon timber lands. A single acre has been known to produce five hundred thousand feet and one tree has yielded fifty thousand feet. There is poetry as well as dollars in a forest like this, but of the latter feature only the lumberman think. For twenty years the Columbia river furnished annually from four hundred to six hundred and fifty thousand cases of canned salmon. Formerly California was supposed to be the natural center of our western frontier. We cannot discredit the magnificent location and resources of that state but it is true that Oregon and Washington are gaining on California by leaps and bounds. It sounds extravagant now but sober and cool headed business men familiar with the fact believe that Portland and Seattle hold the key to the future commerce of the world.

The quiet every day life of home school, office and shop is not visible from the train, street or hotel which are the main points of observation for the ordinary passer-through. Travellers are usually looking for the sensational. Human nature loves the marvelous and bids good-bye to the common-place after it crosses the Mississippi. The truth is that a traveler to any country is most likely to see the worst and is often unaware that the very same thing exists down the back alley of the town he lives in—some other social stratum than his own. Of all that group of states carved out of the majestic wilderness no one now excites a deeper interest than Oregon.

California in general has more glare and glitter and style. But Oregon is less venturesome, is more like the Lake states. With regards to manners and outer semblance the men are less reserved, more flexible, less mindful of dress, style and appearance than men of like wealth and education in the east. Outside show counts for very little with one of these hard headed, keen sighted pioneers who, in his varied career, has rubbed up against nearly every species of human being. It will never do in Oregon to judge a man by dress or immediate surroundings.

The men of Oregon, those who do things, are sturdy citizens. They are honorable in their dealings with their friends, broad in mind as the spreading horizon of the limitless plains and intensely patriotic. They have brain and muscle and indomitable courage. Most of them, or their sires, came when modern civilization in these wilds was an infant in swaddling clothing and they have pushed and lifted and helped to make Oregon what she is and they are proud of her. Some are careless andreckless, some hopeful and buoyant, some rough and uncouth, some refined and educated, but all good fellows together, charitable, generous, sympathetic and true to each other. They are developing, contributing, building fortune and nation.

But the western women comes nearer to being types than do the men. The Oregon woman is an institution in herself, keen, alert, eager for impressions, education, culture, experience, independence, anything in short that will widen her sphere. The native Pacific girl is conspicuously bright and ambitious, rather spoiled by excessive petting from the men but thoroughly womanly and possessing good sense and capacity for improving her own powers. Of all features of Oregon and of the Pacific group in the world the most interesting and encouraging is the ambition and originality of the young people. They are intensified Americans, the legitimate offspring of the epoch heroes of American emigration from every eastern state. The beaten track is abandoned for some new road across some new wilderness. The Pacific boy and girl are born explorers, experimenters and inventors. They are singularly susceptible to all sorts of new impressions and aims and in consequence furnish the best kind of material for grafting culture and scholarship. The state of Oregon is simply one more of those marvels of the conquest of nature which has made the Pacific coast the pride of the nation. A. Decker.

Tea Cake

Sift four cupfuls of dried flour into a bowl and chop into it a scant cupful of butter. Dissolve half a yeast cake in four tablespoonfuls of warm water and stir it into two cupfuls of milk, or enough to make a soft dough. Roll this out into a sheet and cut into cakes as large as a tea plate and less than half an inch thick. Set them, covered lightly, in a warm place until they have nearly trebled in thickness. Bake in a floured pan. Keep them covered for 20 minutes, then brown.

Run a sharp knife around the edge, tear the cake open, butter and serve upon a plate lined and covered with a heated napkin.

To Preserve Flowers

Flowers can be preserved for several months by dipping them carefully, as soon as gathered, in perfectly limpid gum water. After allowing them to drain for a few minutes, arrange them in a vase. The gum forms a complete coating on the stems and keeps their form and color long after they have become dry. Many people like to have bunches of bright-colored autumn leaves in their rooms. They are easily preserved so as not to decay under the influence of the air in the following simple manner: Melt some spermaceti in a tin or earthenware bowl and when it is liquid, but not too hot, dip in the leaves. Then lay them out on a smooth surface to dry. The leaves must be thoroughly coated, but not too thickly.

Tecumseh

Connected with the great earthquake period of 1811-1812 occurred one of the romances of American history. It was the lucky prediction of the earthquake that made the fame of Tecumseh, the celebrated "Indian False Prophet," and led to the uprising of the Creek Nation.

Tecumseh was a Shawnee warrior, and first appeared among the Seminoles in Florida and the Creeks in Alabama and Georgia as early as 1810, trying to form them into a confederacy whose aim it should be to rise against the whites in the northwest.

He failed, and at the breaking out of the war with England in 1812, entered the service of the British, again endeavoring to stir up mischief through the southern Indians.

He had been told by the English when a comet would appear, and he told his excited Indian hearers that at a certain time they would see his arm stretched out over the sky on fire; that he was going to Detroit to prepare for their rising against the Americans. When the proper time came he would strike the ground with his foot so hard that he would shake down the houses in their head city.

He left the Creeks, and at the time when he promised to strike the ground strange to say, came the earthquake. All the territory bordering on the Gulf was agitated. The ground of Alabama trembled violently, and from the earth came terrifying rumblings and groans.

At the same time the comet appeared in the heavens. This was too much for the superstitious Creeks. They rose to a man, and after two years of desperate fighting were a defeated nation.

Tecumseh was killed in the battle on the Thames, in Canada, October 5, 1813. He was carried off the field by his followers, and buried no one knows where.

Of silver and crystal and gold;

With laces as fine as the frost-fairy traces

When mornings are bitterly cold;

In the daintiest hues of the pinks and the blues

All sprinkled with posies and love-knots and roses,

The valentines come to town.

All puffy and fluffy and tinkling and twinkling,

With fringes of tinsel and pearl,

They tell us the story of love and its glory

In the hearts of a boy and a girl.

The GIRL IN RED

By H. M. GARDNER.

(Copyright, by Daily Story Pub Co.)

"Nell—if you don't mind, I'm going to—lodge, to-night."

The words were out at last. Not daring to look at her, I gulped the steaming coffee and covertly, over the edge of the cup, gave her a quick glance. Instead of tears, greatly to my surprise, a pleased expression illuminated her face. Arising, she swept over to me and threw her arms lovingly about my shoulders.

"Do go, Jack; it will do you good. I'll not be at all afraid to remain here."

"Honest, Nell?" I queried, drawing her on my lap and gazing at her questioningly. "Really won't you feel badly, if I go?"

"Not the least little bit. I want you to go."

She was very insistent on my going and later as I walked to the club, I could not help thinking of her eagerness to get me off. We had been married but a few months and this was the first night that I had left her alone. Nell is one of those lovable, clinging sort of women, and I had expected a burst of tears and plaint that I no longer loved her. Her manner to say the least was surprisingly different. It puzzled me.

But Nell's actions, however, were soon forgotten. At the club, I was hailed as one back from the dead. The boys crowded about me, chaffed good-naturedly about giving the "old lady" the slip and welcomed me into their midst, with open arms. There were initiations—and never were candidates put through more ridiculous stunts. I entered into the sport with the abandon of youth. It seemed good to be free—to go out with the boys again. Once more I was the reckless, fun-loving, devil-may-care fellow that my friends had known.

The speeches and toasts were unusually witty; glasses clinked merrily and the glitter, the laughter, the song, I guess went to my head. A sort of resentment against Nell for having kept me tied so closely to her apron string, crept into my breast.

The banquet broke up, but I did not go home. The night air was glorious. Never had I known night to possess such alluring charm. A party of six kindred spirits, set out to "do the town." The full moon riding high in the heavens, smilingly beamed its approval. A policeman lurking in the shadow of an electric light pole, watched us suspiciously. Music attracted us. A masque ball was being held in a nearby hall and we broke in upon the dance, as the music crashed and the dancers swept out upon the polished floor.

A dainty little creature robed in quaint Japanese costume, coyly approached on tip toes and chucking me under the chin, flitted gayly away. I tried to pursue but Mephisto in flaming red, with a demure little black-draped nun in his arms, laughingly bumped me back into the crowd. There was an agonizing shriek of pain and then a green lued umbrella was brought forcibly down on my head and shoulders. I had stepped on someone's pet corn.

Escaping, I turned to follow the coqueting little Jap, but she had become lost in the whirling vortex of dancers. I stood fascinated. All about me was life—life that I had once known. Grotesque and fanciful attired maskers, waltzed and paraded before me. This hall was brilliant with electric bulbs; the orchestra crashed inspiring music from behind the palms; the scene was ever changing and the merry laughter and buzz of the gay throng was contagious. It sent the dormant blood raging through my veins.

"Not the least little bit. I want you to go."

She was very insistent on my going and later as I walked to the club, I could not help thinking of her eagerness to get me off. We had been married but a few months and this was the first night that I had left her alone. Nell is one of those lovable, clinging sort of women, and I had expected a burst of tears and plaint that I no longer loved her. Her manner to say the least was surprisingly different. It puzzled me.

But Nell's actions, however, were soon forgotten. At the club, I was hailed as one back from the dead. The boys crowded about me, chaffed good-naturedly about giving the "old lady" the slip and welcomed me into their midst, with open arms. There were initiations—and never were candidates put through more ridiculous stunts. I entered into the sport with the abandon of youth. It seemed good to be free—to go out with the boys again. Once more I was the reckless, fun-loving, devil-may-care fellow that my friends had known.

The speeches and toasts were unusually witty; glasses clinked merrily and the glitter, the laughter, the song, I guess went to my head. A sort of resentment against Nell for having kept me tied so closely to her apron string, crept into my breast.

I tried to join in their march—but a dull sickening feeling overcame me. I suddenly awakened to my true self and my thoughts returned to Nell—dear trusting girl, awaiting alone at home for my return. With conscience severely pricking, I staggered to my feet. Disgusted and mentally berating myself for being an ass, I turned to leave the hall.

A girl attired in red, red dress, red slippers, red gloves, red hat and red mask, flitted past me. I stopped abruptly. The figure was strangely familiar. I stood, bewildered, puzzled—and then, as my gaze followed the red masked figure whirling about the ballroom, my breath came quick and short. The nails of my clinched hands dug deeply into the flesh.

"Ah! I saw it all, now. I saw why she was so anxious I should go to lodge. Never could I have dreamed of such a thing—such treachery, such wanton deceit. But here—"

The music ceased playing and the dancers were leaving the floor. Leaning on the arm of a cavalier, she entered the palm room.

"Would I follow?" My hesitation was only momentary. My wrath and indignation increased with each passing moment and the thoughts crowding through my brain, made me frantic. I walked quickly across the floor and savagely brushed aside the curtains.

I staggered back, clutching the draperies for support. My head seemed to swing and a mist gathered before my eyes.

The fellow had deliberately kissed her.

There they sat, her head resting contentedly on his shoulder and he holding her in tight embrace.

And I, fool that I was, thought her home, fretful and anxious for my return. The sight maddened me to desperation.

A few swift strides and I stood before them. The man angry at my intrusion, attempted to arise, but before he could do so, I seized him by the shoulders and with almost superhuman strength, hurled him from me, sprawling to the floor. Turning I gazed at his companion; who cowered trembling in the seat.

"So this was why you were so eager that I should go to lodge? Wanted to meet this chivalrous lover of yours, eh?"

Contemptuously I gazed down on her. Every muscle and fiber in me longed to send her to the floor, following her cringing paramour. Savagely my hands clinched and unclenched.

"This gay Lothario; who is he?" I demanded.

Fearfully her hands sought the mask as I to remove it, but after a moment's pause, fell mechanically back into her lap. The engagement diamond sparkled on her gloved finger. Its dazzling brilliancy mocked me and I wanted to tear it from her hand.

"Damn it, can't you speak; can't you talk?" I cried. Let's see your face—let's see if it has any shame in it?"

He attempted to arise.

Reaching forward with a savage jerk, I tore away the mask.

The revelation staggered me. I beheld—not my wife—but the cook.

She had appropriated jewelry and wardrobe from the mistress.

CATARRH GROWING LESS.

Due to the Use of Hyomei. Cures Without Stomach Dosing.

There has been a marked falling off of sales of catarrh cures in the local stores the past year. Medicines which were formerly purchased in gross lots are now seldom called for and the druggist rarely buys more than a dozen at a time.

Hyomei is a notable exception to this decrease in sales. It is, in fact, largely responsible for the lessened sales of catarrh medicines, as it has cured so many people of catarrhal troubles that naturally there is less call for remedies for that disease.

There is no disagreeable stomach dosing with Hyomei. It is breathed through a neat pocket inhaler that comes with every Hyomei outfit. F. W. Jordan gives his personal guarantee that the money will be refunded unless the treatment cures, so that you run no risk at all in buying this reliable remedy.

The complete Hyomei outfit costs but $1, extra bottles, if needed, 50c.

TIPS FOR GUESTS

A Few Necessary Small Things to Remember.

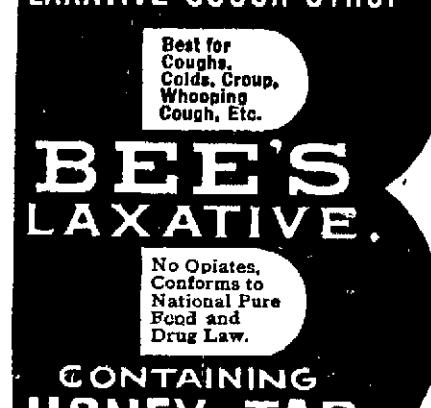

Don't, if you are able to play or sing, make your hostess waste a quarter of an hour pressing you to do so.

Don't, when you are leaving, forget any of your possessions. It is tiresome to have to send such things on post.

Don't keep reiterating how much you enjoyed yourself at the Browns when you were staying there last month.

Don't begin a book and ask if you may take it home to finish, says Home Chat. Your hostess may not want to lend it, but it will be difficult for her to refuse. If she suggests your taking it that is quite another matter.

Easter Sunday

Easter Sunday, 1907, comes on the 31st of March, which is unusually early, and it is not often that it makes its appearance at that early date.

"An early Easter an early spring" is an old saying, but it is not often that it comes in during the month of March. The next time it comes during the month of March will be in the year 1917, or ten years hence, but the last time it came in the same month was about fifteen years ago; but whether its early appearance in 1907 will bring an early spring this year can be better judged after the spring comes. The early date will bring the beginning of Lent February 13.

Nothing will relieve indigestion that is not a thorough digestant. Kodol digests what you eat and allows the stomach to rest—recuperate—grow strong again. KODOL is a solution of digestive acids and as nearly as possible approximates the digestive juices that are found in the stomach. KODOL takes the work of digestion off the digestive organs, and while performing this work itself does greatly assist the stomach to a thorough rest. In addition the ingredients of KODOL are such as to make it a corrective of the highest efficiency and by its action the stomach is restored to its normal activity and power. KODOL is manufactured in strict conformity with the National Pure Food and Drug Law. Sold by Ed. D. Heckerman.

The Railroad Crisis

The argument for government ownership of railroads in the United States has usually been based upon the view that these highways of commerce are of public necessity and should be placed under public control to insure to the citizen an equality of advantage in their use.

The principal argument against such governmental ownership has been the superior practical efficiency of private direction and management. But unless conditions notably prevalent just now should soon be changed for the better, the public-ownership advocates will become confident and aggressive along a wholly new line of advance, where they have heretofore been on the defensive. They will point to the complete breaking down of efficiency in the actual business of transportation in the country, and will begin to claim that the government could not possibly do things so badly and would in all probability manage the roads with a far higher degree of business efficiency.

Furthermore, they will point to the inability of the great railroad managers to obtain the money they need to make absolutely necessary improvements, whereas the government of the United States could obtain almost unlimited capital at half the rate of interest the railroads would be obliged to pay. It does not follow that these new arguments will be conclusive.

There is no evidence as yet to show that the people of the United States, justly exasperated with the railroad managers as they have become, are by any means prepared to throw the burden of railroad ownership and administration upon the United States government. On the other hand, they will heartily support the government in its present policy of investigating abuses and trying to compel those responsible for present conditions to apply practical remedies.

MINE DISASTER

An Explosion in Thomas, W. Va., Caused Loss of 16 Lives.

A serious explosion, resulting in the death of 16 miners, occurred at 6:35 o'clock Monday morning in Mine No. 25 of the Davis Coal and Coke Company at Thomas, W. Va. It is presumed that gas caused the explosion. The rescue work was begun and up to 8 o'clock that night eight bodies had been removed, all being Italian or Lithuanian miners. D. R. Jones, superintendent of the plant, lost his life while leading a rescue party through the mine, having been overcome by gas.

Only thirty days ago the mine was officially inspected and pronounced to be in excellent condition. There were occasional traces of gas, but never in sufficient quantities to require the use of protected lamps.

The mine, which is a small drift opening, with a working force not exceeding one hundred men, is equipped with modern ventilating and safety machinery. This machinery escaped injury and the ventilating appliances were kept in constant operation. The damage to the mine is of small consequence, the explosion wreaking vengeance upon the few miners within, rather than upon the mine itself.
